Innovative Food Delivery Service Launched by Xtern

INDIANAPOLIS – A revolutionary food delivery service, FoodieX, designed to elevate the Xtern individual experience, was launched this month by intern-matching company Xtern.

“FoodieX has been developed with the Xtern’s needs held to the highest priority” said FoodieX president Ted Smith at the launch event. “Every feature is designed to give any Xtern the best possible experience.”

FoodieX is designed to encourage Xterns working in Indianapolis to experience and support local restaurants, added company chief marketing officer Jaqueline Ramirez.

While developing the company, FoodieX employees wanted to create a convenient and contact-free service that highlighted values of safety, usability, and supporting the community. “We really wanted our values to show through in the final product,” said Miss Ramirez, “We vow to support Black-Owned and local businesses during this time of social distress.”

The company was very open about their dedication to safety amidst the COVID pandemic, as well as their commitment to embracing Black-Owned restaurants. To do this, FoodieX has developed a mobile app that guarantees quick, contact-free delivery and will be donating 5% of all profits to supporting local Black-Owned businesses.

“Social responsibility is very important to me,” said Xtern Jeremiah Williams. “I am excited to contribute to FoodieX’s socially responsible mission – and the food options are incredible.”

“I couldn’t believe that there was a delivery company just for my fellow Xtern’s and me,” added Xtern Raquel Abdhul. “I feel so special and appreciated, and I can’t wait to get my hands on some yummy food.”

FoodieX is offering free delivery for Xterns that subscribe to their email list and follow their social media accounts on Twitter and Instagram @FoodieX. Subscribe here: www.xternemaillist.com.
